Limassol, April 2018

Introduction

Our Institute would like to express sincere thanks to the members of the External Evaluation Committee (EEC) for visiting our premises on 6 March 2018. We commend their professionalism and we thank them for their valuable and constructive input.

The report of the EEC has been carefully read and meticulously analysed by a team of four members, who present their reply below. The response has been approved by the Academic Committee (meeting under the Academic Director) and the Internal Quality Assurance Committee (under the Director of Quality), which met at an extraordinary session at our Nicosia campus a few days ago.

We are particularly proud that, out of 111 criteria against which the EEC graded our Institute and the programme, and with the grading ranging between 1 and 5, only at one instance we were graded with 1/5. Similarly, we were graded with 2/5 only once; 3/5 seventeen times; and 4/5 twelve times. The overwhelming majority of time – eighty in total – the panel graded us with 5/5. This means that our average scoring comes to 91.2%.

Before we turn to addressing each issue raised by the ECC, we would like to draw your attention to some considerations that pertain especially to CIM's character and ethos, and to the nature of the course under review.

As you will be aware, The Cyprus Institute of Marketing is a private education Institute that has been providing high-quality education services for the past 40 years. Beginning with an MBA (introduced in 1991), in 2014, we launched the MSc in Human Resource Management & Corporate Strategy, which is registered and approved by the Ministry of Education.

We have always insisted that our programmes followed European educational standards. Our Master programmes in particular have a very strong reputation in Cyprus, something that we have earned through decades of hard work, careful planning, and considerable financial investment. We are very pleased that the feedback from our alumni and business partners has been so encouraging and reassuring. This is despite the fact that we had not sought accreditation for our MSc in Human Resource Management & Corporate Strategy in Cyprus.

The success of all the CIM Master programmes, this MSc programme included, is chiefly down to the fact that they have a strong practical orientation. We have designed a programme that allows students from diverse backgrounds, whether in possession of prior studies in Business or in another field, to acquire essential management skills immediately applicable in the real business world. The majority of our students are individuals who desire to succeed in the local business world, and the main reason they join us (as revealed by internal marketing surveys) is because our Institute has a reputation for being one of the most business-oriented programmes in Cyprus.

One way in which we ensure that our graduates are world-ready, is by employing the skills and expertise of Visiting Lecturers – individuals with many years of work experience. In fact, this is one of our competitive advantages: that we maintain a fine balance between instructors who are members of top companies and acclaimed academics. This practice has allowed us to differentiate our programmes from programmes of other public or private institutions that are of considerably larger scale. It has also enabled us to maintain our share in the highly competitive market of education. For us, it is vital to preserve this comparative advantage in order to be able to remain competitive. Furthermore, as a dedicated Business institute, we believe in bridging gaps between academia and industry.

The Institute's Council has approved the Academic Committee's plans for the future and has placed the accreditation of key programmes offered in Nicosia and Limassol at the heart of our Strategic Plan 2018-2021.

The Institute has decided to apply for accreditation of the MSc in Human Resource Management & Corporate Strategy programme for several reasons. These include the following: to improve ourselves through the process; to attract more quality students and instructors; to improve the employment opportunities of our graduates; to remain competitive towards other similar institutions; and to enable CIM to grow and develop. For all these reasons, we wish to assure the EEC that we are truly thankful for their recommendations, which we graciously accept, and we look forward to a positive outcome.

Reiterating our gratitude, and in the spirit of professionalism and congeniality that marks all of our interactions with EEC, the members of the team ask to be allowed in the following part to address some points raised by the EEC and comment accordingly.

Response to specific comments raised by the EEC:

1. EFFECTIVENESS OF TEACHING WORK – AVAILABLE RESOURCES

Teaching personnel

• The staffing of the course with the current personnel is a primary area of concern for the EEC members. Only one PT staff member is trained with a PhD in HRM; all other staff members have their specialty in other areas (e.g. Marketing or General Business) which means that staff need more preparation time than usual and unable to design and teach the material for a Masters level course in HRM.

We would like to kindly correct the EEC's calculation:

- Associate Professor George Zachariades, who is the Programme Coordinator of the programme in Limassol, has a PhD on Leadership and Organisational Development and extensive work experience in HRM, so it's not correct to state that only one staff member is trained with a PhD in HRM and that no full-time staff have work experience in the field of HRM;
- Moreover, Prof. Andreas Hadjis has extensive experience in delivering modules relating to Human Resource Management both in Cyprus and abroad. Prof. Hadjis has designed similar courses for other universities.
- Nevertheless, taking into consideration the EEC's recommendations, and due to our continuous efforts to achieve academic excellence, we have taken the following actions:
 - i. Dr Celia Hadjichristodoulou, who holds a PhD in Organisational Behaviour from the University of Sheffield, and who has a long experience of delivering HRM related modules and publications, has been appointed as permanent member of faculty and Joint Programme Coordinator for Nicosia & Limassol as of 1st April. The relevant confirmation letter and Curriculum Vitae have been appended below (please see Annex 1).
 - ii. Dr Christina Tsolakis who holds a DBA in HRM, and who is a skilled lecturer in HRM related topics, has been appointed as a Permanent Lecturer as of 1st May. The relevant confirmation letter and Curriculum Vitae have been appended below (please see Annex 1).
 - iii. Dr Evie Michaelides, who holds a PhD in Work Psychology and who is a skilled researcher in HRM related topics, has been appointed Visiting Lecturer as of 1st May. The relevant Curriculum Vitae has been appended below (please see Annex 1).

The above is evidence that we have complied fully with the EEC's recommendation to recruit at least one more member of faculty with HRM expertise and to increase research activity with regards to HRM. We have in fact recruited 3 experts in HRM with significant lecturing and research expertise and in this way we have addressed fully the concerns of the EEC.

- iv. Moreover, to support existing staff and to offer academic oversight over the programme, we have recruited three world-renowned academics as external examiners and consultants. These academics represent three different jurisdictions and have formed a working group with our team. The CIM team has reviewed and implemented the majority of the comments made by these academics in the time since EEC's visit and we have redesigned the programme to meet the EEC's requirements. These academics are:
 - a. John Thompson, University of West London
 - b. Prof Nancy Alexandris, Athens University of Economics & Business
 - c. Prof Françoise Chevalier, HEC Paris

The above academics will also be exploring research opportunities with CIM staff in line with the EEC's recommendation. Their CVs can be found in Annex 2 of this report.

The External Consultants have all confirmed and ratified the updated module content and, as such, we are now fully aligned with the EEC's comments (see Annex 3).

2. PROGRAMME OF STUDY AND HIGHER EDUCATION QUALIFICATIONS

Purposes and objectives

- When designing a program, it is important to ensure that the program's aims, learning outcomes and specific course objectives are aligned.
 - The EEC's recommendation is most welcome; as already mentioned above, the programme has already been re-designed with the help of the team of experts, factoring the EEC's recommendations into the redesign.
- Design a table showing how the program's aims are translated into learning outcomes, and how these learning outcomes are distributed across the various courses, and how each of these learning outcomes will be assessed within each course.
 - The EEC's recommendation is most welcome; the table has been completed and can be found in Annex 4.
- We also recommend changing the name of Human Capital and Organizations to something that is more mainstream, such as Organizational Behaviour, or Organizational Behaviour and Design.
 - The EEC's recommendation is most welcome; this change has been completed and can be seen in Annex 3.
- We recommend that you carefully identify a recent and relevant textbook, and some additional readings that will not be redundant with what is available in the textbook, but rather complement them.
 - The EEC's recommendation is most welcome; this change has been completed and can be seen in Annex 3.

3. RESEARCH WORK AND SYNERGIES WITH TEACHING

- Our review suggests that little of the teaching is research-led. There are currently no full-time faculty who are involved in research in Human Resources, however this does not preclude the academic staff from including high quality research into the curriculum for the program. However, as it stands, research is not adequately incorporated into the module descriptors.

- The EEC's recommendation to include more research into the curriculum of the programme is most welcome.
- Even though there is a full-time HR staff on the programme, and even though the EEC simply demands that the curriculum brings in more research papers and cases – something which we have done through the redesign of the programme and through following the advice of our team of world-renowned team of HR researchers who are acting as consultants to the programme – we have, nevertheless, taken steps to ensure that more research is coming out of CIM, and, moreover, that the research orientation is specific and targeted.
- The CIM Research Centre, which the EEC commended, has made HR a top priority as a field of research and has recruited fellows with HR as the special interest. This will enhance the research that feeds into the teaching.
- In our first meeting of the Fellows of the Centre, it was agreed that HR is made one of the clusters and research directions of our research roadmap. More specifically, projects identified as worth pursuing and seeking external funding for are: learning in the workplace; HR in Shipping; knowledge management.
- Further, with the recruitment of more members of faculty with extensive research experience in HRM & Organisational Behaviour, as well as the association with experienced researchers from Cyprus and abroad who will be working with the Cyprus Centre for Business Research, research in HRM will be promoted even further.

- It is highly recommended that CIM invest resources in more journals in the long run, such as Sage and EBSCO Business Source, as these two providers have excellent journals in the field of Human Resource Management and Organizational Strategy.

- The EEC's recommendation is most welcome and we do have plans to extend our subscription portfolio in due time (this programme is currently non-active). The Institute has already invested heavily in HRM related electronic resources. We are subscribers of the International Journal for Human Resource Management, a leading journal in HRM, while, through the Emerald Collection, our staff and students have access to 26 journals relating to HR, Learning & Organization Studies (please see Annex 5). Added to all of these, and as part of our continuous efforts to improve the available resources – notwithstanding that the course is currently not running – we have also subscribed as of 1st April to another 2 leading online Journals by Sage:

1. Advances in Developing Human Resources
2. Human Resource Development Review

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS OF THE EXTERNAL EVALUATION COMMITTEE

- Program Redesign

- As already mentioned, and as supported by the annexes to this report, the programme has been re-designed in line with the EEC's recommendations and with the guidance of specially commissioned external consultants.

- Programme Delivery

- The EEC accepts that the faculty for the programme is fully competent and experienced to deliver the Strategy-related modules, which forms 50% of the teaching workload;
- As regards the EEC's reservation about the delivery of the HRM modules, this has been addressed with the appointment of three experts in HRM and Organisational Behaviour and the external support of the consultants.

- Over-emphasis on description and explanation in exam questions and underuse of questions that test critical evaluation and application.

- We are in agreement with the EEC's recommendation that more case studies could be used in exam questions and we will put forward this concern at the end-of-year Board of Examiners meeting.

Comments regarding the low grades appearing on the scorecard (1/5 & 2/5)

- Publications within the discipline.

- As already discussed, our Research Centre is currently working on research relating to HRM. We are increasing funding for CIM staff attending a conference, something which will increase the chances of publications. There is already proven research regarding the component of Strategy. The new Academics recruited will certainly promote research even further and through the offering of a Master's programme in Human Resource Management for the first time at our Institute, research will be aided further through the research work of the students during their dissertation process. We have set aside funding especially for lecturers collaborating with student for research purposes (up to 2000 euro). Finally the new Faculty Members and Research partners from other Universities bring a lot of experience and potential for publications in HRM.

- Teaching materials (books, manuals, scientific journals, databases) are updated regularly with the most recent publications.

- As already discussed, a wide range of the latest resources is already available for the programme (even though it is not currently running). There is continuous investment in teaching materials and, since the accreditation visit, more than 100 books on the topic of HRM and Strategy have already been purchased and stored in the Libraries.

Course Title	Dissertation
Course Code	DIS900
Course Type	Compulsory
Level	Postgraduate
Year / Semester	Yearly Course
ECTS	18	Lectures / week		Laboratories/week
Course Purpose and Objectives	The dissertation is meant to provide a means to integrate the theory and knowledge gained from the variety of modules studied throughout the student's time in the programme. The primary aim of the project is to provide students with an opportunity to initiate their own research collect and analyse qualitative and quantitative information and present their findings in a written report. Such an in-depth investigation enables students to produce a piece of work, which has been instigated, developed and produced as a result of their own initiative. The dissertation is therefore one of the means through which has the opportunity to develop and demonstrate the power of rigorous analysis, critical enquiry, independent judgment and clear expression. The key aims of this module are to: A1. Enable students to plan and conduct an extended piece of postgraduate business/management research. A2. Provide corporate and theoretical contribution A3. Develop critical thinking and management skills for the management role and broaden students' perspectives beyond the limitations of their prior experience A4. Broaden students' creative and research skills to produce original and thought-provoking solutions to real-world management problems A5. Provide a critical understanding of theory and research methodology
A1.	Upon completion of this module, students will be able to: LO1 critically evaluate the practical application of academic knowledge LO2. undertake a first-hand investigation into a management issue or problem within the field of management; LO3. set out appropriate aims and objectives of the problem under investigation; LO4 carry out a literature review and use appropriate methods of primary and secondary data collection and demonstrate an awareness and understanding of relevant theoretical work related to the chosen research issue or problem;

	LO5 apply critical thinking and scholarship to the relevant literature and use appropriate methods of analysis to the data collected; LO6 present the work and its results in a clear, well-organised and logical manner; LO7 develop findings, draw conclusions from the work, make recommendations and discuss opportunities for further research; LO8 develop professional level communication, time management and presentation skills.
Prerequisites	RM902: Research Methods	Required
Course Content	There is no specific module content with regard to subject knowledge as each student will be conducting research into a topic of their choice.
Teaching Methodology	The dissertation is essentially an independent piece of research, which requires students to take responsibility for the planning and execution of their chosen research project. Building upon the research proposal developed in the prerequisite research methods module, the student will work with their individual supervisor to meet the requirements of the dissertation. Students can submit drafts of the chapters of their dissertation in order to gain feedback before the final submission. In addition to individual supervision, there will be a series of support workshops, which will give students generic advice on the dissertation process and the component parts, which typically make up the dissertation. Students will develop skills of planning, analysis, critical evaluation and time management.
Bibliography	KEY TEXTS Saunders, M., Lewis, P., and Thornhill, A. (2016), Research Methods for Business Students. 7th ed.
