The present document has been prepared within the framework of the authority and competencies of the Cyprus Agency of Quality Assurance and Accreditation in Higher Education, according to the provisions of the "Quality Assurance and Accreditation of Higher Education and the Establishment and Operation of an Agency on Related Matters Laws" of 2015 to 2021 [L.136(I)/2015 – L.132(I)/2021].

A. Guidelines on content and structure of the report

- The Higher Education Institution (HEI) based on the External Evaluation Committee's (EEC's) evaluation report (Doc.300.1.1 or 300.1.1/1 or 300.1.1/2 or 300.1.1/3 or 300.1.1/4) must justify whether actions have been taken in improving the quality of the programme of study in each assessment area. The answers' documentation should be brief and accurate and supported by the relevant documentation. Referral to annexes should be made only when necessary.
- In particular, under each assessment area and by using the 2nd column of each table, the HEI must respond on the following:
 - the areas of improvement and recommendations of the EEC
 - the conclusions and final remarks noted by the EEC
- The institution should respond to the EEC comments, in the designated area next each comment. The comments of the EEC should be copied from the EEC report without any interference in the content.
- In case of annexes, those should be attached and sent on separate document(s). Each document should be in *.pdf format and named as annex1, annex2, etc.

1. Study programme and study programme's design and development (ESG 1.1, 1.2, 1.7, 1.8, 1.9)

The LLM has been considered to be fully compliant in all criteria of this section. No deficiencies in the quality indicators have been identified.

The EEC has confirmed that the LLM programme has a clear purpose and design, as well as a set of learning objectives. The EEC acknowledged that the choice of concentrations responds to societal and professional needs of Cyprus, confirming specifically this point after discussion with alumni students.

It was furthermore confirmed in the EEC's report that the University and the School of Law apply adequate quality assurance controls on many levels, including the LLM programme. The EEC acknowledged that there are structures and procedures, allowing for student monitoring, teaching engagement and regular interaction between students and staff. It was specifically stated and praised that there exist several research-related activities (e.g. externally funded projects) that allow for the participation of students that are interested.

The EEC further acknowledged that the Programme is taught by a healthy mix of full-time and part-time academic staff, that have a strong research background and keep up to date with developments in their respective field of research.

The EEC has further made suggestions for improvement. We address each one herein.

elective following the revision of the Programme (which was approved by DIPAE in the previous round of evaluation), in order to enable the possibility of completing the requirements of the Programme in a single year in accordance with DIPAE's announcement. Due to the structure of the Programme this was only possible by merging the Dissertation with the Research Methodology for a unified 30 ECTS, and keeping the Research Methodology also as an elective for those students who did not wish to take the Thesis. The School of Law will examine in the future how it might be possible to implement such a change in the future, i.e. making compulsory the course, in a way that would not hinder offering the Programme in one year for those who complete the Thesis, as this is not possible at present. We have, however, set up a committee that will examine this issue in depth and revert to the School and suggest changes. For the time being we will implement alternative choices and actions, such as that key-points from the material of the specific course will be shared in the form of notes and guides in all Programme courses, and will be available to students. We carefully note this point. It is true that student enrollment numbers are relatively low (it

	students are appropriately and

2. Student – centred learning, teaching and assessment (ESG 1.3)

The LLM has been considered to be fully compliant in all criteria of this section. No deficiencies in the quality indicators have been identified.

The EEC has confirmed that the design and content of the Programme support the individual and social development of students; as well that it is sufficiently flexible, allowing for students to take a number of electives. At the same time, the EEC acknowledges that in practice course choice is limited due to low student numbers.

The EEC has further acknowledged that a. the teaching processes are modern and effective, b. the distribution of ECTS seems reasonable, c. the existing processes for collating feedback, appeals and complaints seem to work well, d. the Programme is compatible with DL delivery and the relevant methodology, e. students have several opportunities to participate in research, f. the University utilizes platforms and installations that support on line teaching, learning and administrative processes.

The EEC acknowledged moreover that academic integrity is upheld through Proctorio and Turnitin, while the Programme staff is fully aware of the challenges posed by the current advancement of AI technology and actively working on strategies to address the situation. The EEC finally noted that assessment methods seem fair and consistent, highlighting however that assessments are not anonymised.

The EEC has made suggestions for improving the LLM Programme. We address each one in the following table.

it. We actually had a recent Law School General Meeting, dedicated exclusively to this topic with a discussion about possible coping strategies. Furthermore, indeed, this is something being currently discussed at a University-wide level, within the competent authorities and bodies. We commit to promptly conveying the relevant discussion and the EEC suggestion to the Senate. The Committee recommends that the courses prioritizes asynchronous on line-interaction (due to the fact that students face various problems while attending teleconferences). The recommendation is noted and very well received. We place absolute emphasis on interactive learning and concurrent teaching methods and approaches. As previously noted, we shall review all LLM courses aiming to further ensure that they promote on-line interaction in all teaching and assessment aspects. Speaking of asynchronous interaction, this can be especially realized in the framework of weekly activities, since other-type of assessment, i.e. final exam and written essays concern much more individual work-organization and tasks. We consider that there is already a focus on asynchronous interaction so the recommendation can be easily implemented.		T

3. Teaching staff

(ESG 1.5)

The LLM has been considered to be fully compliant in all criteria of this section. No deficiencies in the quality indicators have been identified.

The EEC acknowledged that the University has a strong support structure for teaching staff. It especially recognized that the Programme staff demonstrates s high level of teaching dedication and effort. The Committee has further noted and praised the following: a. high quality academic profile of the teaching staff, b. quite low staff-student ratio c. adequate support of staff from senior management and university structures.

The EEC has further pointed out areas of improvement and made certain suggestions. We address each one herein.

4. Student admission, progression, recognition and certification (ESG 1.4)

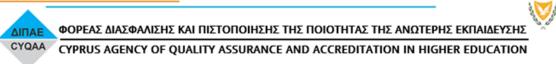

The LLM has been considered to be fully compliant in all criteria of this section. No deficiencies in the quality indicators have been identified.

The EEC has confirmed that the regulations regarding student admission are pre-defined and published online, while being flexible enough to accommodate different types of students. The access policies, admission processes and criteria are implemented consistently and in a transparent manner.

The Committee confirmed moreover that the teaching staff actively promotes interaction, fostering a collaborative learning environment and encouraging student self-assessment, continuous improvement and feedback. The EEC acknowledged that students benefit from a good student-teaching staff ratio and that student feedback is very positive

The EEC has finally made a certain suggestion for improving the LLM Programme, which we address in the following table:

5. Learning resources and student support

(ESG 1.6)

The LLM has been considered to be fully compliant in all criteria of this section, with the exception of one where it was partially compliant. No deficiencies in the quality indicators have been identified.

The EEC has confirmed that the Institution has sufficient equipment for the delivery of DL programmes, as well as a library with an accessible catalogue and access to other on-line resources. The Committee has reported that the University overall has the appropriate mechanisms for overseeing the development and implementation of student-related policies; and that the DL Unit (ePSU) provides pedagogical support to staff members in creating, implementing and evaluating on-line courses. The Report confirms that the courses have comprehensive syllabus and detailed weekly study guides, noting at the same time that assessments are not always clearly detailed.

The EEC has further made suggestions for improvement of the Programme. We address each one herein.

B. Conclusions and final remarks

We wish to thank the EEC for the professionalism they showed during the execution of their duties. The detailed discussion of all issues pertinent to the degree under evaluation, led to a fruitful discussion between the members of the EEC and the official representatives of the University and faculty members of the programme. The discussion proved to be extremely helpful due to the expertise of the members of the EEC and their willingness to share their suggestions and recommendations for further improving the programme. The demanding set of questions allowed us to elaborate on specialized aspects and deep foundations of the Programme and expand upon the content of the application form.

We have assessed and reviewed carefully the EEC report. We are pleased to note that the report is extremely positive, and we thank the EEC for their remarks and conclusions that are very supportive of the Programme. We fully acknowledge that all programmes are always amenable to further improvement, and indeed we have been constantly working towards further improving our Programme since it was initially accredited. Accordingly, the suggestions for further improvement offered by the EEC are taken very seriously into account. We consider the suggestions of the EEC as very helpful and we will try to incorporate them to the widest extent possible. We thank once more the Committee for all the suggestions/recommendations, and address each concluding remark herein.

Consideration of making Legal Research Methodology (MLAW-509 DL) a compulsory course

We fully understand the rationale of the suggestion. It is a critical learning objective of the Programme that all students demonstrate high-quality research skills and structured legal reasoning and writing competency. We need to note that most LLM students actually take the Methodology course, as it is compulsory for those who wish to fulfill a Master Thesis, but it is also offered as an elective for the rest. We note that the Research Methodology course was compulsory, but was changed to elective following the revision of the Programme (which was approved by DIPAE in the previous round of evaluation), in order to enable the possibility of completing the requirements of the Programme in a single year in accordance with DIPAE's announcement. Due to the structure of the Programme this was only possible by merging the Dissertation with the Research Methodology for a unified 30 ECTS, and keeping the Research Methodology also as an elective for those students who did not wish to take the Thesis. The School of Law will examine in the future how it might be possible to implement such a change in the future, i.e. making compulsory the course, in a way that would not hinder offering the Programme in one year for those who complete the Thesis, as this is not possible at present. We have, however, set up a committee that will examine this issue in depth and revert to the School and suggest changes. For the time being we will implement alternative choices and actions, such as that key-points from the material of the specific course will be shared in the form of notes and guides in all Programme courses, and will be available to students. We carefully note this point. It is Suggestion for reconsidering the balance between compulsory and true that student enrollment elective courses numbers are relatively low (it remains a crucial discussion and planning issue within the School, how to increase enrollment). This is a fact that impacts negatively the ability to open numerous elective courses, at the same time, from both concentrations. As we had the chance to explain orally to the EEC, in practice we offer the elective courses in rotation. All students are appropriately and clearly informed about the above facts and factors, and every effort is made to ensure that all elective courses are being offered on a steady basis. The choice of concentrations, in any case, responds to actual societal and professional needs, as t is expressly acknowledged in the EEC Report, and we consider the variety of courses and subject matters covered therein as a Course outlines contain a specific section referring to learning methodology, but surely there could be added a relevant section on study guides as well. Furthermore, as long as the study guides already contain detailed learning outcomes per week, we commit to make clear to all course instructors that they should add recommended study time per week (indicative study load calculation e.g., 2hours per week for lecture reading, 2h for assignments preparation, 2h for weekly activities etc.). The teaching staff will be explicitly asked furthermore to specify chapters or page numbers in the bibliography of each section.

We would like to thank the committee once more, both for the positive and fair evaluation, as well as the constructive comments and suggestions and the fruitful discussion that we had with its members during the visit. We also thank the committee for the time and thoroughness it dedicated to the evaluation of the LLM and for helping us improve the Programme through the suggestions made. All recommendations of the committee refer to further improvement, and some need discussion and potential decision at Senate level as they are not applicable only to this specific Programme. The recommendations and evaluation of the committee are seriously taken into account for the further improvement of the Programme. We consider this endorsement under the conditions of external peer review as a resounding vote of confidence in the LLM and its potential for academic success.

We finally acknowledge the clear positive evaluation and recommendation for accreditation of the LLM.
